

➤ Privacy Policy

The Personal Data Protection Service ensures high level of confidentiality of the users of the website www.personaldata.ge ; www.pdps.ge.

Storage and Use of Data

Web users' data are collected and stored on the web-server for the term of up to 5 weeks, in the form of the so-called logs. The received information is not used for identification of users; data are processed for statistical analysis only, as well as possibly for detecting informational security incidents and for web-administration purposes. No data processed by the website are transmitted to a third party.

During the visit to the website, the server records data and method of the visit, IP address, Referrer and address of the viewed information.

Google Analytics

We use Google Analytics service for optimization, quality improvement and technical assessment of the web. This service provides statistical data on the information requested by the user of the website (search content, various sections of the website and so on). For example, country/city from which the website was visited, duration of the visit, operational system used. This information is processed only for statistical purposes and identification of users on a technical level is impossible.

Cookies

Cookies on our website are used for simplifying user navigation, offering information in a preferred format and improving search criteria.

Cookies are used to collect information on the duration of a user's visit on the website, country from which the user accessed the site, language used during the visit, whether the user participated in the survey and if any technical problems were encountered on the website.

Registration for a Training

On our website every interested individual can register for a training organized by the Personal Data Protection Service. For this purpose, the website collects the user's name, surname, e-mail address and telephone number. This information is stored by the Service on the officeserver for 6 months. After the expiry of this term, the data is erased.

Other Web-pages

The website of the Personal Data Protection Service might contain links to other websites. The Service does not take responsibility on privacy policies of these websites. Therefore, we encourage you to read the privacy policies of other websites you visit.